

Oceans

I never knew how to lie to you
I never knew what to say to
I never knew how to love you
I didn't know how to lie

It is never enough to know
About tomorrow
For noone ever knows
The sun will rise again

An ocean in between
That seperates the soul from what is right what is wrong
From the shadows a hand did rise to pull me into the waves of eternity

Open your eyes to what lies beneath
Release from the mask
Let me see you smile for once
I want to feel your reality
And your tears will dry upon
My doom forevermore
And a flower will spread
In my empty eyes with the years

A million tales I told
A million deaths I died
My blood will drip from the ceiling
My mind will fly
Now that I lost you
Finally I am free

I see tears in your eyes
What do you hide?
Beneath the mask
Now I see the sun